

Junior Student Named Battalion Commander ROTC

Cadet John Jenkins was named Battalion Commander of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch Reserve Officer Training Corps Unit for 1964-65 at the annual Awards Day and parade, Thursday May 14.

John will be a junior majoring in secondary education from Athens, Georgia. He is a member of the UTMB football squad. The advanced ROTC program which will begin next year makes this the first time it has been possible for a junior to hold this position.

Honorary Cadet Martha Lee Woods was selected Battalion Sponsor for next year.

The Department of Army Superior Cadet Ribbon and Medal was presented to Cadet Joseph M. Coffey in Military Science I and to Cadet Grant T. Patterson in Military Science II. These men were chosen for outstanding academic standing, leadership and participation in military activities.

For outstanding academic standing and participation in military activities, Cadet Roy Dwight Roberson, Military Science I, and Cadet Alec F. Bridges, Military Science II, each received the Chicago Tribune Gold Medal.

The Rotary Scholastic Awards were presented to Cadet Charles Hughes, Military Science I, and Cadet Grant Patterson, Military Science II, for the highest overall grade average in all subjects.

Cadet Lowry J. Farmer, Military Science I, and Cadet David L. Castleberry, Military Science II, were presented the American Legion Awards for the highest accumulative grade in military subjects.

The Martin Jaycees Awards were presented to Cadet John M. Vick, Military Science I, and Cadet Joe M. Alphin, Military Science II, for outstanding leadership and potential.

Cadet Lorry Ruth was presented the Meritorious Service Award for his display of leadership and the development of his platoon.

The parade which was in recognition of Armed Forces Week this year, was reviewed by Lieutenant Colonel W. O. Snyder, advisor to the National Guard in this area. Presidents of local civic clubs and officials of the university were present to give awards to the recipients.

The Volette Staff Nears Completion

Several UTMB students have been named recently to fill vacancies on The Volette staff for next year, according to Olivia Howell, editor.

Margaret Fisher, a sophomore majoring in home economics from Decaturville, had previously been named editor for next year.

Clare Nell Chandler, a sophomore in home economics from Dresden, has been selected to fill the post of associate editor.

Business manager for 1964-65 will be Nancy Adams, a sophomore in secondary education from Dresden. This is the first time in recent years that a girl has been business manager.

Andrea Jonas will be in charge of features, and David Duncan will continue his duties as sports editor.

Jerry Brigrance will be in charge of circulation for 1964-65.

The Volette will again be published every week, except when there is some schedule interference. It will consist of four pages and will be tabloid size printed by the offset method.

1964 Baccalaureate Services Will Be Held On May 31

Baccalaureate Services for the graduating seniors of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch will be held Sunday, May 31, at 3 p.m. in the New Physical Education Building.

Seniors To Hear Glasgow At Aloha

Aloha Oe ceremonies are drawing nearer for the 133 candidates for June graduation of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch.

The traditional Aloha Oe ceremonies will be held Friday, May 22, at 8 p.m. on the Athletic Field.

An address welcoming the members of the graduating class to the ranks of the alumni will be given by James Glasgow.

Mr. Glasgow, an alumnus of U-T Junior College, received his law degree from The University of Tennessee. He served for several years as assistant state attorney general in Nashville. Afterward he worked as legal consultant to a Nashville insurance company. He joined Tom Elam of Union City this year to form the law partnership of Elam and Glasgow.

J. T. Patterson, president of the senior class, will give the response.

Following the lighting of the cross and lighting of the torch, the alumni pledge will be given by Hyatt Williams, class of 1963. The torch will be passed to the seniors by Gloria Wright and Margaret Haley Pritchett, both of the class of 1963.

The traditional taps will be sounded by Robert Duffey and Jerry Thorne.

Newly elected ASA officers will be installed during the ceremonies.

Aloha Oe will be preceded by a reception for the seniors and their families to be held in the Home Economics Building.

Dr. Clark received his bachelor of arts degree from Millsaps College, Jackson, Mississippi and his bachelor of divinity from Yale University Divinity School, New Haven, Connecticut. He received the honorary doctor's degree from Millsaps College in 1962.

Dr. Clark is presently serving as Vice Chairman of the Mississippi Commission on Christian Higher Education; a member of the Professional Advisory Committee of the Mississippi Association for Mental Health; a member of the Mississippi Conference Board of Education; Jackson District Director, Christian Social Concerns; President of the Family Service Association and lecturer for the Department of Preventative Medicine, University of Mississippi Medical Center.

In 1962 he was selected as one of 100 delegates from all over the world to attend the Second Oxford Institute on Methodist Theological Studies sponsored by the World Methodist Council at Lincoln College, Oxford University, England.

The baccalaureate invocation will be given by the Reverend James Moore, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Martin.

The UTMB Choralairs will lead the congregation in the songs "Come Thou Almighty King" and "America the Beautiful." A special number, "Moonlight Sonata," will also be presented by the Choralairs.

Introductions will be made by Vice President Paul Meek.

Following the Baccalaureate services, the seniors and their families will be honored at a reception given by Vice President and Mrs. Paul Meek, to be held in the New Physical Education Building.

Atomic Era Shouldn't Make One Feel Sorry For Oneself

You shouldn't feel sorry for yourself because you are living in the era of atomic bombs. Every decade is rough.

Don Whitehead, newspaperman, two-time Pulitzer prize winner and author of "The FBI Story," presented this challenge to more than 500 students and faculty members when he spoke on campus yesterday.

"The major evil confronting our generation is communism which sells itself as liberalism," said Mr. Whitehead. "This didn't spring from the masses, but from the minds of intellectuals. A small group wants to rule the world - they intend to tear down the old institutions, such as religion and government."

Mr. Whitehead commented that he understood why communism appealed to the hungry. However, he raised the question of why it appealed to the intellectual community. He answered by saying that certain intellectuals wanted to be the leaders of the world, and communism intends to rule the world.

"Man will never give up the dream of individual freedom," he assured.

Mr. Whitehead, a veteran of 36 years as a newspaperman, is an old friend of Vice President and Mrs. Paul Meek. He entertained the student body with some vivid accounts of their early life together in Harlan, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead were entertained at a noon luncheon at the Gateway by Vice President and Mrs. Meek and the All Students Association.

After the luncheon Mr. Whitehead told the guests of some of the thrilling experiences of going ashore at Omaha Beach in Normandy when Allied forces invaded Europe in 1944. He received this assignment from the Associated Press by whom he was then employed.

Present at the luncheon were special guests Mayor Doug Murphy of Martin, Trustee Tom Elam of Union City, administrative officers and department heads of UTMB, ASA officers, members of The Volette staff and a number of other students.

Graduating Students Should Complete Forms

All graduating students will be required to fill out personnel forms next year, according to Lewis Larsen, director of alumni affairs.

No campus interviews will be scheduled between students and employers until the student has completed a personal data sheet and has been interviewed by a representative of the UTMB placement office.

All personnel data will be kept on file on the placement office and a photostatic copy will be sent to the employer upon request.

Thanks For Cooperation

In this, my last issue as editor of THE VOLETTE, I would like to extend my thanks to the UTMB student body, the administration, our advertisers and publishers and THE VOLETTE staff for their very gratifying co-operation and hard work during my two years as editor.

Without any one of these groups it would have been impossible to have a news paper and therefore impossible for me to have done my job. If the students, our readers and supporters, did not accept THE VOLETTE, then there would be no need for all the effort. If the administration did not cooperate with the student newspaper, then there would be no source of authoritative information, no adequate reason for being. Without advertisers we would lack funds as well as the support of the citizens of Martin. And without our publishers' help there would be no means of putting together or printing the paper. Without a staff there would be no one to do the work.

But THE VOLETTE has been lucky in having all of these of the very highest caliber and the two years' work have been most rewarding to me, personally. For this I am grateful.

Next year's staff is already lined up. Interested people are already beginning to work toward new goals for THE VOLETTE. As our university is growing and improving, so is our college newspaper. Next year will be the best year yet!

Cunningham And Patterson Get Edgars For Top Acting

BY BUDDY PARKER

Charlotte Cunningham and J. T. Patterson were awarded "Edgar" trophies for best actress and actor at the Drama Awards Banquet held last Wednesday night at the Vanguard Theatre Building.

"Edgars" were also awarded to Cheryl Stigall and Homer Kemp for their best supporting roles. Mary Douglas for her musical performance and Jim Horde for his excessive work at Vanguard were awarded special "Edgars."

Awards continued to flow as resigning Vanguard Director Shaw Robison was awarded a gift from Vanguard students followed by praise and esteem from student, faculty, and, finally, Vice President Paul Meek.

Dramatic excitement keyed the evening as almost 100 Vanguard members and guests dined and bid their time in anticipation of the awards.

Resting on black chiffon drapings as they awaited their presentation, the gleaming silver "Edgars" peered down on an evening of entertainment that frequently rose to a professional quality.

Gene Treadway, serving as master of ceremonies, got more than a few hardy laughs with his quick-witted and sometimes apparently spontaneous humor.

"Cousin Hattie" was the first talent he introduced to his audience.

"Cousin Hattie" (Miss Harriet Fulton) gave a farcical vision of Vanguard actors and actresses at their thespian activities as seen through the eyes of an unenlightened "char woman." Floor scrubber on the premises, she was said to have cleaned up everything but the shows.

Bill Boldin and guitar followed on the program. He held the audience in stentive silence with softly and beautifully rendered versions of "Donna" and "My Horses Ain't Hungry."

Perhaps the fastest action of the evening occurred during the "TW3" skit. This was a series of spoofs on Vanguard productions of last year.

Mary Douglas continued in this humorous vein with her portrayal of Ado Annie singing several of Annie's songs from Oklahoma!

The entertainment changed pace when Shaw Robison with his fine voice rendered two warm songs about rainy and sunny weather. The third song in his presentation was a popular type ballad composed by UTMB student Ronald Pratt. The composer at the piano accompanied Robison.

Presentation of the drama awards followed this entertainment.

Olivia And Charles Will Live Happily Ever After, No Doubt

BY ERNIE MCCALL

Leadership is a quality that we believe developed early in our present editor of The Volette.

Her mother tells us that, at the age of five, she first noticed Olivia Hollabaugh Howell's desire to see life run smoothly. It seems that Olivia and another five-year-old were supposed to sing a duet in a kindergarten program. When the boy continuously "goofed" their practice sessions, Olivia went home and told her mother that "he would just never amount to anything."

Olivia's background reflects that she made progress toward becoming a real leader during the four years she attended Peabody High School in Trenton. She was a member of the Beta Club, president of FHA and a subdistrict officer, member of the Student Council, editor of the Black and Gold student newspaper. She worked on Red Cross Drives, Cancer Crusades, and was one of four co-chairmen of the Teenage March of Dimes for her county. She attended Girls State, earned her state degree in home economics, and was named Most Original in Who's Who. She also rated salutatorian of her class.

On graduating Olivia won three scholarships and chose to use them at UTMB. Her contributions to this campus have been ones of which she and her family can be proud. She has won both upper and lower division Home Economics Awards at UTMB. Just recently she was named Outstanding Senior Home Economics Student.

April 10, 1963, Olivia and Charles Austin Howell became engaged. Their engagement was one of the most touching that the campus has seen in recent years. Knowing that Charles planned to present Olivia with a ring on her birthday, his fraternity brothers decided to meet the couple in front of the Women's Main Dorm with long stem pink roses to express their congratulations. As the couple stood in the doorway of the dorm, the boys sang as girls crowded around the door on the inside to look on from there.

The fraternity brothers also remembered them on their honeymoon as five of them and their dates "visited" them on that evening.

The marriage has had a few problems just like any other. First of all there was the confused plumbing in their trailer; the commode ran hot water. Then Olivia had to learn to cook about three times the amount she would have ordinarily prepared. (Charles has come a long way in life—from a four pound incubator baby to a BIG man needing much nourishment.) But, as it happens for many couples, these problems have worked themselves out for the commode now runs cold water and Olivia has learned to cook in quantities. In all honesty we believe happiness will prevail in this marriage.

Charles has leadership qualities of his own. In high school Charles played tackle for the Central Tigers of Bolivar. Although when he was a senior he tipped the scale at 260 pounds, two teammates were heavier than he. Their team proudly boasted a line average of 210 pounds.

Charles was a subdistrict and a chapter officer of FFA three years and was recipient of the State Farmer Degree his junior year. He was a member of the Student Council and won the State Farm Mechanics Award and Senior Agriculture Award his senior year.

As a member of the Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity, he served as house manager three quarters. He is a member of the Agriculture Club, circulation manager of The Volette, and a correspondent to the Commercial Appeal.

His congeniality, calmness, sincerity, and good public relations are just some of the assets that have made his college career a success.

Charles and Olivia have headed the publication of this newspaper this year in such a manner that the whole school can take pride in their production.

We, the Volette staff, salute you, Charles and Olivia, a pair of leaders under whom it has been a pleasure to work.

Navy Captain Of Nautilus Fame Speaks Here Tonight

Captain William R. Anderson, commanding officer of the first atomic powered submarine, Nautilus, will be the guest speaker at the annual Business Club Banquet, to be held tonight, May 19, at the Park Terrace in South Fulton.

Under this command the Nautilus made the first voyage in history to the North Pole, passing under the pole enroute from the Pacific to the Atlantic on August 3, 1958.

In July 1960 he was promoted to Captain two years early and ahead of almost 2,000 contemporaries, becoming then at 39 the Navy's youngest line captain.

He retired from active Naval service, after 20 years, July 1, 1962, as he put it to "serve perhaps on a more crucial front—the political, economic and philosophical."

Captain Anderson is a native Tennessean.

Clare N. Chandler Made Chapter Head

Clare Nell Chandler has been elected president of the Home Economics Chapter for 1964-65.

Announcement of next year's officers was made at the annual spring banquet Friday night.

Other officers announced are Sherryl Warmath, first vice president; Jennie Emrich, second vice president; Eileen Mitchell, secretary; Margaret Fisher, treasurer; Lee Barnhill, ASA representative; Joyce Hearn, Volette reporter; Elaine McKee, annual representative. Miss Mary Virginia Bryant, home economics teacher from Milan High School, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Pikes Plan Sorority Playday For May 23

Next Saturday Afternoon, May 23, from 1 to 4 p.m. Pi Kappa Alpha will sponsor a playday for the sororities on the drill field east of the Student Activities Building under the name of Pikes' Panhellenics.

The afternoon will consist of softball throws, sack races, balloon relays, egg rolling contests, mud-throwing contests (if the girls approve), and all sorts of events. A large trophy will be awarded to the sorority accumulating the most total points.

Alpha Delta Pi Gives Tea For Miss McDonald

Members of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority held a tea in honor of Miss Sibyl McDonald, University of Tennessee Martin Branch, dean of women Sunday, May 17.

Parents of Alpha Delta Pi members, alumni, and faculty members were also invited.

The AD Pi Mothers' Club also held their meeting that afternoon.

Jean Smith Elected To Head Student Wives

Jean Smith has been elected president of the UTMB Student Wives Club for this quarter.

Other officers are Glenda Haynes, vice president; Judy McSurley, secretary; Ann York, treasurer; Carolyn Moseman, reporter; Cheri Bethune, parliamentarian.

Pikes Win Two Sports Trophies For School Year

Epsilon-Sigma brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha will receive the Inter-Fraternal Sports trophy and also the Men's Greek Intramural trophy at the end of spring quarter.

For the first time a trophy has been given to the fraternity accumulating the most points in intra-fraternal sports. The Pikes fell behind in the race for top spot last fall by ending up in last place in the rope-pulling events. However, they won the football championship in a play-off held this spring after finishing in second place in the basketball tournament to put them back in the running.

The softball games proved to be the deciding factor when the Pikes broke a first place tie last week by defeating the ATO's who were champions of the basketball play-offs. The Phi Sigs topped the AGR's who were second place in the football games.

The Athletic Department's Intramural trophy is given to that fraternity whose brothers accumulate the most points in intramural play. This marks the third straight year that the Pikes have taken this trophy.

Achieving Of Honors Comes From Talent, Effort And Study By Individual Student

The achievement of honors must come from the talent, effort and study of the individual student, according to Dr. Paul Meek, Vice President of The University of Tennessee in charge of the Martin Branch.

Speaking to the student body and faculty at the Initiation of Honors Day at UTMB May 14, Dr. Meek reminded the worthy recipients that honor carries also responsibility.

"The democratic educational philosophy of our own America has been that all children and young people should have the opportunity for an appropriate education and out of this great reservoir of talent and ability of all the people should come the aristocracy of achievement as Thomas Jefferson so aptly expressed it in the early beginnings of our country's history," Dr. Meek said.

This year for the first time UTMB has achieved the formation of a scholastic honor society on the campus, and this should further stimulate the efforts toward intellectual attainment, the speaker said.

"Society must depend upon its younger citizens for continuity, for improvement and growth," Dr. Meek said. "Today we are recognizing those students who have received honors and the recognition of above the norm of achievement in various fields of endeavor."

Dr. Norman Campbell, dean of instructions, recognized the 15 students selected as charter members of the newly formed honor society. He was assisted by Professor H. B. Smith, dean of students, in presenting certificates and awards for departmental honors, scholarships, campus activities and campus citizenship.

Certificates also were presented to those who had been selected to appear in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Roy W. Black, representative of the Tennessee Historical Commission, made the presentation of books "Messages of the Governors of Tennessee," by Robert H. White, to the history major with the highest average in that field.

The Honors Day program was begun with a number by the UTMB Concert Band, under the direction of Glenn Wiesner. The invocation was given by the Reverend William Nace, director of Wesley Foundation.

Special music, "Let Not Your Song End," was rendered by the UTMB Choralists, under der the direction of Miss Harriet Fulton and accompanied by Robert Stewart.

Following the address by Dr. Meek and the presentation of honors and awards, James C. Henson led the audience in singing the Alma Mater.

As It Looks From Here

BY DAVID DUNCAN

UTMB's colors have been retired and packed away for another summer, but the stains of the Vols' endeavors were packed away with them and will remain to provide a sparkling reminder for next fall—a spark that will glow brightly in the new football stadium and the young fieldhouse.

The spark gained heat last fall in the hearts of a young, inexperienced squad of gridsters who surprised many spectators and opponents by their sheer grit and determination. Although knocking off Harding College, Livingston State, and Missouri Mines, sweeter victories were earned against favored Troy State and Florence State.

However, one of the Vols' most outstanding onslaughts came at Middle Tennessee State when they scored a near-upset by falling only 21-14 to the Raiders whom the Nashville Tennessean favored 48 points.

Immediately after the football dressing room had been swept out for the last time, the Vol courtsters bounced in for their first season in the new field house.

They started slowly in the season and lost several games, but caught fire at mid-season and ended with a 11-9 overall record by taking six out of seven of their last games on the road. The Vols met several tough teams throughout the season including Delta State, whom they upset at Cleveland, Mississippi, Southeast Missouri, whom they came close to tripping here at Martin, Austin Peay State, and Florence State.

Coach Floyd Burdette's Vols faired well in conference play and extended the season with a 6-2 total and a second place rating before going to Nashville. Although turning cold in their opening match in the VSAC tournaments, the sympathy wreath sent by the student body of Tennessee Wesleyan will not soon be forgotten.

Then began spring sports of which tennis took the spotlight with a 6-4 record. Coach J. C. Henson's swatters turned in superb performances during the latter part of the season winning four out of five of the last matches.

Capitalizing on the doubles events, the Vols won the entire number of paired matches on several occasions. These totals often provided the winning margin for the home boys.

Coach Ed Chenette's baseballers had an up-and-down season this spring. With inexperience causing the major trouble, pitching depth also accounted for numerous problems.

Hitting was often spasmodic and errorneous defensive play accounted for several defeats. With only two or three dependable pitchers, that side of the battery was overworked. However, the Vols possessed that spunk and hustle that is such a trademark of the UTMB Vols and produced a lot of outstanding performances in victory or defeat.

Track was also hindered by inexperience but also by lack of interest. Unable to participate actively because of the lack of facilities here at Martin, the cindersmen were forced to run all their meets at other tracks and therefore had little support from home fans.

Morale is hard to hold up with no spirit from the sidelines except that from the opposing stands. This problem will remain until there are adequate track facilities here at UTMB.

Great strides were made in the interest of golf this season by Coach Grover Page.

For the first time, a match was held with UTMB as host on the greens of the Fulton Country Club. More interest has become evident and hopes are high for a good season next season.

Thus ends a wrap-up of UTMB sports. All that is left now is high hopes for next year. With athletic facilities growing and with the school expanding, student body support for the activities of the Athletic Department should accordingly grow. Let's keep this in mind.

Tennis Team Posts 6-4 Record For One Of Best Spring Seasons

BY DAVID DUNCAN

UTMB's tennis team, coached by J. C. Henson, posted one of the best records in the history of spring sports this season after a late splurge of four straight victories.

The Vols began the season with a 6-3 win over the Eagles of Lambuth, but lost two straight to Belmont College and Austin Peay by the respective scores of 5-4 and 6-4.

At mid-season the netters were swatting just below the .500 mark after tripping Bethel 6-3, but dropping the Union game 5-4. However, with four games left the Vols got to work and put together four impressive wins.

UTMB took Union 7-2, Lambuth 7-2, Bethel again 6-3, and Lambuth by the score of 6-1. These wins gave the Vols an attractive 6-4 record for the season.
